SUBJECT: FATAH CONGRESS ELECTS FRESH FACES TO FRC

¶1. (SBU) On August 16, the Fatah Sixth Party Congress released official election results for the (now) 81-member Fatah Revolutionary Council (FRC). Voting resulted in a substantially newer FRC, with only 11 incumbents retaining their seats. Many newly-elected members are former First Intifada activists, and represent a fresh generation of mid-ranking political leadership for the party.

¶2. (SBU) According to Fatah contacts, the vote was generally considered fair, and the results were welcomed by delegates eager to portray the Congress as a generational milestone for Fatah. Abu Mazen, announcing the results, termed the vote a "new launch," saying the "spirit of youth" would empower Fatah to address the challenges posed by national dialogue, elections, and negotiations.

¶3. (SBU) Abu Mazen also praised the election of female candidates by a "more civilized" FRC election process. Of the 81 victorious candidates, 11 are women (with Amneh Jibril leading the overall vote tally), one was born an Israeli Jew (long-time Palestinian rights activist Uri Davis), and four are Christians.
